City workers get new 'company vehicles'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Employees of the City of West Sacramento have a new fleet to select from when they need a vehicle for quick official errand. The vehicles in the new fleet have two wheels and a seating arrangement that lets the rider put both feet on the ground at a stop sign.

The city has spent $50,000 for a new "bike barn" in the parking lot behind city hall on West Capitol Avenue. The barn not only serves as a garage for private bicycles used by some of the bike commuters on the city staff, but also is home to five new bikes employees may "borrow" at pretty much any time. A sixth city bike is stationed at the city's South River Road offices.

"One intent of the structure was to allow more people to bike commute," said Shpak. "There are a number of people (at city hall) commuting by bicycle and they've been storing their bikes in their offices. In here, we have an air compressor and some tools. The basic purpose is to support commuting and mid-day riding."

But there's another reason for the "fleet."

"The second objective is to have a bike sharing program," said Shpak. "People might wish to use a bike for short-distance trips – say, between city hall and the police department, or city hall and our facilities on South River Road. If they don't have a choice, they will have to use a city car."

Now, they can use their computers to reserve a bike. That's what several people from the community development department did recently when they headed out for a "site visit" at a West Sacramento development project.

"Four or five people from community development decided they'd check out the bikes and do a field visit with them. The developer was impressed – and one of them wrote an article about it in a bicycling newsletter."

The bikes "are the kind of bikes anyone can ride," said Shpak. The seat height is adjustable, and the crank and pedals are set somewhat forward of the seat. That means that someone can pedal with proper extension of their legs, but can also bring their feet back and drop them all the way to the ground, while remaining seated, anytime the bike stops.

"People can check out a helmet as well," Shpak said. "Each bike has a lock and a basket, and there's a holder for people to place their own water bottle if they like."

So far, he said, "there is quite a bit of use."

"It gets used every day except when it's blistering hot. It's everything from somebody using a bike mid-day to get their cardiovascular system going, people running a mid-day errand, or people doing a field visit."

City hall (1110 West Capitol Avenue) already has showers for its employees who might commute by bike or take a lunch-time jog.

Shpak hopes that the bikes will reduce the city's motor vehicle fleet costs, help employees stay fit and healthy, and maybe reduce the city's "carbon footprint" relating to car pollution and climate change.

"We don't know what the usage will be and what the long-term costs will be," he admits.

A few communities around the world have experimented with an even bolder bike sharing program: they offer bikes in public places that anyone may simply hop on and use, before dropping it off when they're finished. Such a plan isn't in West Sacramento's near future, said Shpak. For now, the new fleet is under lock and key, accessible only to city workers.

"What we did was purchase six bikes for employees to check out for any reason, with as few rules as possible."

Market owner shot, injured by pair of robbers

One of at least three recent armed robberies

A West Sacramento business owner received some shotgun pellets in the arm during a robbery Monday night. The incident happened at about 9:20 p.m. at the Bryteway Market at the corner of Lisbon Street and Solano Avenue in the city's north area.

"Two suspects came into the store, dressed head to toe in dark clothing, with bandannas over their faces," said Lieutenant Derek Brummett of the West Sacramento Police Department. "One of them was armed with what we have learned is a shotgun."

In addition to store owner Abdulla Fattah, said Brummet, the owner's wife and a clerk were present.

The robbers demanded cash.

"Apparently, they didn't move fast enough, and a shot was fired and hit the owner in the forearm," Brummett said. "One of the man reached into the cash till."

The amount of money taken isn't known, he said. The injured owner then chased the pair out of the store.

"They ran east from the store and started going through backyards. We established a wide perimeter, but weren't able to locate them. It's possible that either they had a vehicle nearby and were able to get out of the area before we were on scene, or they lived nearby or had acquaintances in the area and were able to go inside away from the heat."

The shooting victim is recovering, said Lt. Brummett.

A pair of armed robbers hit a market on Sixth Street about three weeks ago, said Brummett. But police don't have enough information to know if the robberies involved the same suspects.

Records at the police department also show the report of an armed robbery in the city last Thursday morning. The record said two subjects used a gun to take cash and jewelry from a clerk, as well as cash from the business, at about 6:15 a.m. at a donut shop on the 2300-block of West Capitol Avenue.

Man convicted of 'pandering' to 17-year old

An Elk Grove man was convicted last week of "pandering" last week. The man had solicited a 17-year old West Sacramento girl for sex in exchange for money in December.

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig said that Todd Robert Dixon, 40, called his friend's 17-year old stepdaughter on her cell phone on Dec. 2007, and asked if she wanted to make a "quick, easy $200." He then sent her a text message saying, "U with me 1 Night 200 or More."

The girl told her parents, and the stepfather told West Sacramento police.

Sergeant Jason Winger and the department's Community Response Team created a "sting" to catch the suspect, along the lines of those featured in the NBC television show "To Catch a Predator." An undercover officer used the girl's cell phone to send text messages to Dixon, who said he would get a room at Motel 6 on Halyard Drive in West Sacramento. Dixon later sent a text message to the girl's phone after he checked into the motel.

Police went to the motel, and a text message was sent to Dixon to inform him that the girl had arrived. But when Dixon opened the door, he was met not by the girl, but by officers.

Dixon was found in possession of $262 cash, as well as beer and sexual lubricant. On the TV in the room was the TV show "To Catch a Predator," said the D.A.'s office.

"Fortunately, law enforcement caught Dixon before he victimized this 17-year old girl or another child," said Deputy District Attorney Tiffany Susz in a press release. "We commend the 17-year old girl for coming forward and the West Sacramento Police Department Community Response Team for its immediate response in catching this predator."

Dixon faces a maximum sentence of six years.. He will be sentenced on Sept. 22.

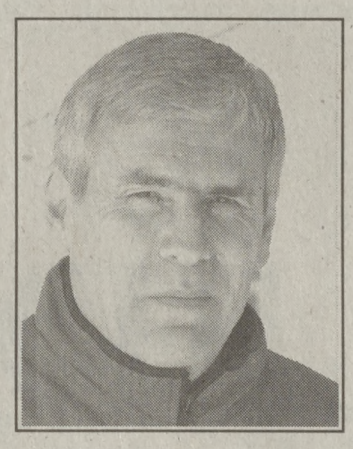
Grass fire doused near Triangle Ct.

Local firefighters put out a one-acre grass fire last week.

"On Monday, August 11 around 3 p.m., Engine 41 was dispatched to a reported grass fire behind 1031 Triangle Court," said the West Sacramento Fire Department. "En route, Engine 41 located a large column of smoke and requested [other units]. All personnel on scene assisted with extensive mop-up."

Quitting smoking

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Editor's note: Daryl is up in the redwoods camping this week. Below is one of his favorite columns from the past.

I was over at Whitey's Jolly Kone the other day picking myself up a couple of their delicious deluxe tacos when an old friend I hadn't seen in ages strolled up and asked me how everything was going.

"Fine, just fine," I answered as we exchanged a hug. "And how about you?"

"Well," she answered proudly, "you're not going to believe this, but I think I've finally quit smoking."

"Really?" I said, a little surprised that anyone as bright and health-conscious as she had always been had been puffing away on cancer sticks until just recently.

"You probably didn't even know that I smoked, did you?" she asked, no doubt noticing the puzzled expression on my face.

I shook my head 'no' and said, "But that's really great that you've decided to quit."

"It's actually been kind of easy so far," she said, "and once I make a decision like that, I'm pretty good about not changing my mind. It's only been a few days, but I'm sure I won't smoke again."

You're a stronger willed person than I am, I thought to myself, recalling how truly difficult it had been for me to finally quit smoking some twenty years ago this January 22nd. And how do I remember the exact day, you ask? Well, first a little history.

I began smoking at the ripe young age of 13. A few of my buddies were doing it, and since I was determined to be as cool as they were, one night in a friend's bedroom, I agreed to light up one of his Lucky Strikes (no filter back in those days) and puff away on it.

"That's not the way to do it," said my cool friend as I sat around in the center of the little smoke cloud I had created, "you've got to inhale it. You know, suck it in before you blow it out. See, like this."

His demonstration, especially the way he blew out two or three perfect little round circles of smoke, was just about the coolest thing I had ever seen.

"Like this?" I asked, taking a deep drag on my Lucky Strike. And when I had finally stopped coughing and choking about five minutes later, my cool friend patted me on the back and assured me that all I needed was some practice.

And practice I did! I'd hide in a locked bathroom for hours, sucking away on my dad's Pall Malls (which, when lit, smelled a lot like the sewer water down in the ditch at the end of my street) and my mom's Salem's, which left a strong menthol-flavored taste in my mouth that made me think that instead of having just done something really wicked, I had only brushed my teeth.

Not only did I religiously work on my inhaling, but I also spent countless hours improving my ability to blow smoke out of my nose (instead of just my mouth) as well as refining my Humphrey Bogart cigarette lip-hanging technique. When someone would finally bang on the door, I would quickly flush away all the evidence and then very innocently stroll out of the bathroom, so dizzy that I would bounce off the hallway walls on my way back to the front room. If the TV was on, the screen would inevitably start to sway back and forth in front of my eyes and make me so seasick I was sure I was going to throw up. But did I ever once consider that maybe my body was trying to tell me something? Naw, not me.

As I became an accomplished smoker (after also trying Camels, Winstons, Tareytons, Kents and Raleighs (I tried that last one because of the coupons) I decided that if I really wanted to be cool, then I had to become a Marlboro Man.

By the time I returned from overseas in 1970, I was smoking three packs of my beloved Marboros a day and finally decided that it was definitely time to quit. I tried cutting back, but that only made them taste better. I tried smoking only outdoors, but that didn't make much sense on cold, rainy winter days and nights. I tried smoking only after eating, but that made me rush through meals and led to stomach aches. I tried never smoking at the office, but that left me with nothing to do during work breaks. I even tried smoking those low tar things, and almost gave myself a hernia trying to drag some nicotine out of the darn things.

Then, about a half-dozen years later, it finally dawned on me that I needed a REAL reason to quit. The ones I had used before (someone once even convinced me that quitting would improve my sex life – something to do with nicotine deadening nerve endings) simply hadn't worked. What reason beyond my own personal health could I use? There had to be something.

"The doctor says the baby could come any day now," announced my wife one night during a Scrabble game.

That's it! Parents shouldn't smoke around little babies! So the day my first child is born, I'll quit! And unlike New Year's or some other date I was always picking out and then discarding, the birth of my first child was one that would never come around again.

So, the night my daughter made it into the world, I puffed away on my Marlboro's until they let me in to see her and her mother. Then I slipped into the nearest bathroom, tossed the rest of my pack into a waste paper basket, and told myself if I ever smoked again, I would be lower than pond slime.

Not only did it somehow work, but now, almost twenty years later, I'm one of those horrible reformed smokers who is always telling people who light up that they're probably going to die decades before they should, and even worse, that their clothes and hair stink.

And the only fond memory I still cherish from my smoking days is the lit Viceroy cigarette a very sweet nurse with incredibly kind brown eyes once gently placed between my lips in an aid station near a faraway place called Lai Khe, Vietnam.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The United States continues to lead the XXIX Olympics in the total medal count as the Games head into the final five days of competition. China and the United States continue their race for the country with the most medals but as of Tuesday the USA held a slim three medal lead in the standings over China. The Chinese have won more Gold medals (43) than the Red, White and Blue (26).

The USA seems to have lost its dominance in Track and Field competition especially in the sprints. The USA sprinters were favored to run away from the competition but Tyson Gay the fastest sprinter failed to reach the finals and the women sprinters were shut out by the Jamaican team in 100 meters.

Congratulations to Stephanie Brown Trafton of Galt on her Gold Medal win in the discus throw! Next week I'll take a look at the final medals count and review the good, bad and the ugly from the XXIX Olympiad. Don't forget the "Closing Ceremonies" are schedule for Sunday, August 24th.

NFL Preseason

The 49ers beat up the Packers offensive line during their 34-6exhibition win last Saturday ruining Aaron Rodgers return to the Bay Area. The Cal graduate, who has been crowned the new quarterback of Green Bay Packers, was sacked four times during his shaky night out in the cold air of Candlestick Park.

The fun has started for the Niners in their battle for the starting quarterback job. J.T. O'Sullivan will start Thursday game against the Bears while million dollars man Alex Smith battles with Shaun Hill for the number two spot. J.T. is starting because Hill is nursing a sore arm and Smith is still under throwing receivers and looks a little nervous behind the center.

The Raiders played well enough to win their preseason game last Friday night in Tennessee but their defense turned into last years Raiders defense and couldn't stop the Titans last minute winning field goal drive.

The Raiders biggest problem continues to be at wide receiver with Javon Walker displaying some bad hands. The Raiders gave Walker a ton of cash to be their go to man and their deep threat but Walker has been a very big disappointment dropping passes in key situations. Look for the Silver and Black to scout the waiver wires for some new hands at the wide out positions.

The Raiders will be at home this Saturday (6 p.m.) to host Arizona while the Niners travel to Chicago for a special Thursday (5 p.m.) night game against "Da Bears".

Diamond Notes

The Giants (53-71) have started their youth movement a little early this year recalling two players from their Double-A team while releasing veteran infielder Jose Castillo. The G-Men called up third baseman Ryan Rohlinger from their farm system where he was batting a combined .289 in 117 games with Class A San Jose and Double-A Connecticut.

The Giants have five rookies on the current roster that can play infield positions which include Travis Ishikawa or Pablo Sandoval who can play first base. Also Emmanuel Burriss, Ivan Ochoa and Eugenio Velez are handy at second while Burriss and Ochoa are interchangeable at shortstop. Good-bye Omar Vizquel and Rich Aruilia.

The A's (57-67), who are 6-23 since the All-Star break, continue to struggle especially from the lack of relieve pitching. The bullpen is 1-5 over its last 18 games but it hasn't been Brad Ziegler's fault.

Brad Ziegler set down a string of 39 1/3 straight scoreless innings to begin his Major League career and, in the process, set a new standard that took 100 years to break. George McQuillan held the previous mark of 25 scoreless innings set in 1907.

The streak ended Thursday, when the right-handed submarine thrower allowed a run over two innings for a no-decision as the A's lost to the Rays, 7-6.

The Giants starting pitching which has been pretty good lately with nine shutouts, one fewer than the league leading Dodgers will be tested at home this week against Florida and San Diego while the A's hit the road to Minnesota and Seattle.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF Florence Eleanor Close
CASE NUMBER PB08-136

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Florence E. Close and Florence Eleanor Close:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Donald Close in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Close be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: Sept. 18, 2008, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 1, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The West Sacramento Police Department is scheduled for an on-site assessment as part of a program to achieve reaccreditation status by verifying it meets professional standards.

Administered by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc. (CALEA), the accreditation program requires agencies to comply with state of the art standards in four basic areas: policy and procedures, administration, operations, and support services.

As part of the on-site assessment, city employees and members of the community are invited to offer comments at a public information hearing scheduled for Monday, August 25, 2008 at 7:00 p.m. The public hearing will be conducted in the City of West Sacramento Council Chambers, located at 1110 West Capitol Avenue, West Sacramento.

City employees and members of the public are also invited to offer comment by calling (916) 617-5020 on Monday, August 23, 2008 between the hours of 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. Comments will be taken by the CALEA Assessment Team.

Telephone comments as well as appearances at the public hearing are limited to 10 minutes and must address the West Sacramento Police Department's ability to comply with CALEA's standards. The standards are available for review at West Sacramento Police Department, located at 550 Jefferson Boulevard, West Sacramento. The department contact is Evelyn Ledesma, (916) 617-4932.

Anyone wishing to submit written comments about the West Sacramento Police Department's ability to comply with the standards for accreditation may send them to the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement, Inc. (CALEA), 10302 Eaton Place, Suite 100, Fairfax, Virginia, 22030-2215.

Comment on police operations

Assessors from the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc. (CALEA) will visit the West Sacramento Police Department Saturday. The auditors will look at the department's policies and procedures, management and operations.

The department seeks to have its "accreditation" by CALEA renewed for another three years. The department was initially accredited in 2002, and the status was renewed in 2005. The department hopes to show it meets "state of the art" standards – "a highly prized recognition of law enforcement professional excellence," said a police department press release.

The public is invited to offer comments on the department at a public hearing at 7 p.m. on Monday at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

The public may also telephone the assessment team at (916) 617-5092 between 1-5 p.m. on Monday to offer comments. Or, members of the public may write to CALEA, 10302 Eaton Pl., Suite 100, Fairfax, VA 22030-2215.

All comments must address the department's ability to meet CALEA standards.

Wood pellet maker for port?

Meanwhile, high-tech company 'Affymetrix' plans layoff

The Port of Sacramento has announced it's in negotiations with a wood pellet manufacturing plant that could open within a year.

Enligna USA would "convert wood waste from urban tree cutting, forestland and orchards into wood pellets for international export and domestic use, primarily as a fuel source for power generation," said a press statement from Port Manager Mike Luken. The company will employ "up to 41" people, he added.

The current "exclusive negotiations" between Enligna USA and the port follow the port's approval of a new biodiesel manufacturing plant.

""Development of the proposed Enligna plant would extend the Port of Sacramento's success in attracting environmentally friendly cargo," said Luken. "The Port plans to reuse existing buildings and storage facilities originally built for fertilizer import and distribution for the Enligna plant."

"Development of this type of facility is consistent with our strategy to attract operations that help to reduce the Port's environmental footprint and provide clean-entery products to end users," said Mike McGowan, chairman of the Port Commission.

The plant's wood pellets are expected to be used for power generation, relatively cleanly. The plant is proposed to have the capacity to produce 200,000 tons per year, making it "one of the biggest and most modern wood pellet mills worldwide," said company president Lutz Glandorf.

Meanwhile, media reports say that West Sacramento's Affymetrix Inc. will lay off 110 employees and close its Riverside Parkway manufacturing plant as it increases outsourcing of work. The company produces disposable test panels with gene fragments for research use.

Best Content and Best Use of Products, Produce or Artifacts. Wes Ervin, Yolo County's Economic Development Manager accepted the awards on behalf of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors.

Participating in the 2008 California State Fair's theme, "Go Hollywood," Yolo County's booth uses symbols from the movie, The Wizard of Oz, to highlight Yolo County's leadership in using eco-innovations to support and increase environmentally sustainable agriculture and related industries.

"Yolo County is committed to protecting agriculture, and being sensitive to the impact we make on the environment," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chairman Duane Chamberlain. "Our exhibit this year shows how we use innovative ideas to help us achieve our goals."

Yolo County's interactive exhibit is centered on Dorothy and Toto dancing along a yellow brick road made of kernels of corn (Yolo County's highest grossing field crop) that winds its way to an emerald city and the Wizard of Ag. Walking through the exhibit, the visitor is greeted by the Scarecrow, who "knows" about Yolo County Agriculture; the Tin Woodsman, who "cares" about sustaining Yolo County's bounty; and the Cowardly Lion, who is not "afraid" of bugs. Each character provides information to fairgoers about eco-innovations in Yolo County. Windows cut into the exhibit show the ghostly image of the Wizard, the wicked witches of the East and West caught up in a cyclone, and mysterious eyes that seem to follow the visitor.

Yolo County's exhibit is located at the east entrance to Building B at the California State Fair, and is staffed by county employees on weekends. Yolo County Visitor's Bureau maps, listing the farms, wineries, festivals and other activities are available at the exhibit.

Yolo County's State Fair exhibit is a result of months of hard work by the members of the county's State Fair exhibit committee, with special contributions from the University of California Cooperative Extension, who provided produce and expertise in agriculture, and the Richard Bay Puppet Theatre Company, which designed and constructed the exhibit.

GUEST COLUMN:

'You made the book!'

By Stuart Greenfeld

If you are like me, you pay an annual premium for whole house insurance, appliance extended service warranty, and computer support. Make an appointment with any of these service providers and they will not tell you (except for the specific day), when they will show up, They will tell you that a repairman will be there sometime between 8 AM and 5 PM. Also, that you must be home or have someone in your house who is 18 years or older. Essentially, this requirement means that you will kill your whole day...or run a risk of getting into a hassle with your wife or one of your kids, (someone needs to be in your home from 8 to 5). It also says, that the person delivering the service is more important then you, your wife or an adult child. "You made my book. . ."

Try getting to your home in Bridgeway in one piece. The Southport (Speedway, oops!) Expressway (between Lake Washington Blvd and Promenade Street) can be your experience in road racing. I am doing the legal 45 miles per hour and getting passed like I am on the Autobahn and my car has died and it is standing still. Traffic is doing at least 65 MPH or better in the early evening. Plus, the Sun is at just the right angle to keep be half blind while I struggle to get home and hear the cars whizzing pass me. "You made my book. . ."

The sign at the Automated Car Wash tells me that my car is being washed, rinsed, waxed, having a protective coating applied and being covered with a "spot free" rinse prior to being dried. After the blow dry and on the way out of the car wash, I notice water drops on my car windows, hood and side view mirrors. . . By the time that I get home, those droplets became dried gray spots on my car and look awful."You made my book. . ."

'The 'Southport Speedway' can be your experience in road racing. I am doing the legal 45 miles per hour and getting passed like I am on the Autobahn and my car has died and it is standing still. . .'

Have you sent a card out to someone, without weighing it to determine the exact postage due? I had this experience not too long ago...Sent a musical birthday card to a nephew, who lives in New Mexico ... After three weeks, my family told me, that the card never reached its destination. Of course, I sent another card and this time, I put on extra postage (this card got there within three days). Three months later, I received the first card back. On the envelope it said, 12 cents due. Not a problem, my fault, I should have checked the postage before mailing the card. "Now the rub. . ."

The card was not stopped at the main Post office in West Sacramento and returned to me with postage due. Rather, the card was sent on to New Mexico, where the postal service recognized that the card required an additional 12 cent postage. Instead of sending it on to my nephew and his family, who would have gladly paid the 12 cents, the postal service in New Mexico sent it back to West Sacramento post office and then our local postal service returned it to me ... How much personnel time and delivery time cost was involved to make this round trip? Rates go up and the service goes. . . "You made my book. . ."

Have you got an idea or experience that would fit in Stu Greenfeld's book? You can email him at stuartgreenfeld@aol.com.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered one foot six inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. This reading was taken at low tide and is not a real indication of the stage of the river at this writing, for it is safe to say that the depth of the stream where the reading was taken is at least six feet. Shoals have appeared above the Southern Pacific bridge to such an extent that apparently an average size man could walk across the river. The effect of the tide on the stream shows plainly an upward turn when the tide is incoming and debris from the wharves being built by the Southern Pacific Company on Front street floats up past the water intake of Sacramento.

As a pastime John Johnson, the night watchman at the West Sacramento headquarters, set up two hives of bees last fall and when about to find if his bees had been busy the other day, he was greatly surprised to find nineteen frames filled with first-class honey. As a matter of fact, bee-keeping in the West Sacramento district is becoming quite an industry and the returns secured are better than the average, owing to the great fields of alfalfa that are allowed to ripen and blossom in the district.

Miss Dixie Chiles spent the week-end with her parents in Chiles Valley, Napa County.

The West Side Auto Camp, under the direction of its owners, McNally & Partridge, received two truck loads of watermelons last Wednesday and went to the trouble of going to the source of supply in order to give their customers the best in the market. So as not to lose time, they drove down Tuesday night and on Wednesday, when their trucks were loaded, they spent the night in traveling from Turlock to West Sacramento. But the melons are wonders, nearly peaches, and the trade those boys are enjoying, especially from auto tourists and neighbors in the vicinity of their camp, is extraordinary.

William Brown, arrested by Constable Buckingham yesterday, was discovered by Judge Barry to be an inmate of the Soldiers' Home at Yountville, but had been indulging in the consumption of canned heat or gas in the vicinity of the M street bridge and in the jungles. Pleading guilty to the charge of being drunk, he resented the imputation that he was a vagrant and expressed his readiness to pay a fine or do anything else to make amends for his sinning, but he did not want to be placed on the black list at the Soldiers' Home. He promised Judge Barry to return to the home as soon as possible and on that account he was given a suspended sentence of thirty days in jail. It only took him five minutes to get to Sacramento and get the first train back to the Soldiers' Home.

Claude Howard and wife, with Frank Todhunter, left here last Saturday to make a trip by auto as far south as Mexico. They disclaimed any idea of getting away from prohibition but a few of their friends joked them about bringing back a toothful of real stuff.

Willie Freese of Riverbank went bathing last Tuesday in the river and in the pockets of his clothes left a watch, a ring and some keys owned by his mother. At the same time three youngsters of the Russian fraternity of Bryte were bathing in the river and leaving the water before the Freese boy, they found the watch, the ring and the keys, and appropriated them. Constable Buckingham managed to secure a confession from them that they had stolen the goods but when they went to find the ring and the keys they could not be located. The watch was returned to Mrs. Freese and a decision has not been reached yet as to what punishment should be meted out to the youngsters, all of whom were less than twelve years of age.

Joe Pereira and wife left here last Saturday to make an auto trip to the northern part of the state. The last heard of them they were in Redding and were then on their way to Pereira's old home in Ft. Jones, Siskiyou County.

WASHINGTON BOOSTERS' CLUB TAKES ACTIVE INTEREST IN INCORPORATION OF THE TOWN

Although the president and vice president of the Washington Boosters Club, Mrs. A. M. Cameron and Mrs. P. A. Hart, were absent on their vacations last Tuesday evening, a well filled hall greeted the regular meeting of the club.

Ray Peek presided again and active discussion was indulged in for a lengthy period.

The committee that had been appointed at the previous meeting to take up the question of incorporation made a report that it had been in consultation with attorneys but that definite plans had not yet been formed to go ahead with incorporation. Some difficulty had been experienced because so many of the Sacramento attorneys were out of town on their vacations. A full report on the preliminary work in the question of incorporation was promised for the meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, August 5.

It is expected that absent officers will have returned by that time and that further interest will be stirred up in the important question.

There is no doubt whatever that the property owners and voters of Washington are becoming anxious about incorporation. Other towns are framing, under incorporation, to boost their localities and the people of Washington are fully alive to the fact that incorporation seems to be the cure for the evils that inflict the community at the present time.

Perhaps the most vital question that concerns the taxpayers is that of expense following incorporation. Is the assessed valuation sufficient to bring enough revenue to the city authorities to conduct the town in a proper manner?

How much will the road tax that now goes to the county government give to the newly incorporated town?

What will be the expenses of incorporation, and what will be the subsequent expense after incorporation?

What form of government will be adopted, what officers will be elected, and what officials must be paid a salary to conduct the affairs of the community?

All these things are vital in taking a step so important and beneficial to the community.

A committee of the Boosters Club reported last Tuesday evening that the school trustees of the district had been approached about placing a night watchman on the public school building during the next two or three months. The committee, consisting of Mrs. Floris, Mrs. Esycheck and Mrs. Painter, reported that they did not get much satisfaction from the trustees because at the present time there is very little money in the school fund for the district, but the trustees were about to investigate and see what could be done to protect the public school building, especially because there seems to be an epidemic of school fires throughout the state.

The loss of the public school building would bear heavily on the taxpayers of the district because the structure is not yet fully paid for and, besides, another new building would add to the burden of the taxpayers.

Ray Peek reported to the meeting last Tuesday that the M street camp grounds had been greatly improved under the direction of its owner, Mr. Boyd, and that every sanitary precaution had been observed. Mr. Boyd also promised that the appearance of the camp would be changed from its present dilapidated condition as quickly as his finances would permit it.

G. A. Townsend, who has been picking up garbage, appeared at the club to report that so far he had secured only forty-six customers outside the two camp grounds and that most of these wanted only a monthly service for the removal of garbage, tin cans and other refuse. He said that such a number of customers would not pay him to continue the work and that at least there should be a weekly or bi-monthly service.

His charge for hauling away garbage is only 50c for monthly service and $1.00 for weekly service. He reported that all the garbage hauled is being burned at the present time in the dumping ground north of town.

Where garbage is allowed to remain in wooden barrels or kegs, as is sometimes the case, Townsend said there is danger of spontaneous combustion and he had found several receptacles about ready to catch on fire.

T. D. M. Slaven was present at the meeting last Tuesday evening and complimented the club on the progress it was making on the question of incorporation. He partially explained the methods that should be pursued and made an extended talk in favor of the question.

At the meeting to be held on Tuesday, August 5, a large attendance is expected and a full report will be looked for from the committee of investigation.

PREHISTORIC SKELETON FOUND NEAR RAILROAD TRACKS WEST OF TOWN

The mania that has lately developed all over the United States and in fact all over the world to find prehistoric skeletons, prehistoric mammals and prehistoric dinosaurs seems to have spread to this section of the state.

Last Tuesday a Washington boy, digging for angle worms near the overflow west of town, discovered a skeleton. It was such an extraordinary skeleton that he reported his find to some of the Sacramento officers and immediately word was sent to the University of California to start an investigation.

True enough, some professors arrived the next day to investigate the skeleton and to place a date for its existence about three million years before Christ.

All the necessary proofs were there. There were bones, hair, vertebrae and nose horns.

A real live story was in course of publication, something that would surprise the world, something that would outclass the relics of the Gobi desert, relics that antedated the Los Angeles prehistoric find, that at last Washington was about to be put on the map.

But along came a farmer, a real dirt farmer, a man who had lived in the locality for several years and who had been a sufferer from floods and other such inconvenient affairs.

When he heard the professors discussing the merits of the new find he laughed hilariously and when those professors inquired of him the cause of his levity he simply told them.

"That was a skunk I killed last winter for killing my chickens and I buried him there because I dare not bring it nearer to my house."

ELECTION OFFICERS APPOINTED FOR PRIMARY ON AUGUST 26TH

Woodland, July 27.—County Clerk Harry R. Saunders reports today the selection of 212 election officers in the various precincts of Yolo County at the primary election to be held throughout the county on August 26 next. More than half of the officers selected by the board of supervisors, or to be exact, 114 of them, are women electors of the various precincts. One precinct has not a man on the election board. This is Woodland precinct No. 11, where there are six women election officers.

It will be noted that George A. Ball is once again on the Woodland election board in his precinct, a record of well over thirty years that he has served consecutively on county election boards. Ball is quite proud of his record. The roster of election officers for this section of Yolo County is as follows:

Clarksburg Precinct.

Polling place in auditorium of school house. John Krull, J. C. Marshall, N. K. Kurtz, J. S. Bell, William C. Huntley and B. A. Taylor.

FEDERAL DRY AGENTS MAKE RAID ON STILL IN WEST SACRAMENTO

The source of liquor supplies for a large number of itinerant laborers in the western end of the city is believed by officers to have been cut off by a raid made Friday night on a resort conducted by Tom Sumski in West Sacramento. The raid was made by Prohibition Agent W. W. Greer and Sumski was placed under arrest.

Greer was able to obtain only a small quantity of liquor, as Sumski destroyed it as the officer entered the place. He said large numbers of men have been crossing the river from Sacramento to obtain liquor at Sumski's place.

THREE COURTLAND PEOPLE ARE ACCUSED OF FRAUD

BOND POSTPONEMENT HAS NO OPPOSITION IN WEST SACRAMENTO

At the election held in West Sacramento last Friday, July 25, not one single vote was registered against the postponement of payment of bonds that were about to fall due on January 1, 1925, January 1, 1926, and January 1, 1927.

The voting in this instance was done on assessed valuations and while all the property owners did not take advantage of the opportunity to vote, it was significant that the vote represented a total sum of $324,000.68.

The effect of the election will be that the landholders will be relieved of the payment of $171,000 until January 1, 1941, 1942 and 1943.

This potponement was asked because the committee of the bondholders who now have charge of the district felt that this was a poor year to assess this tax on the landholders.

There remains now only one bond issue that is being paid off each year and which will not bear heavily on the property owners within the district.

SACRAMENTO CAPITALIST MADE DEFENDANT IN DIVORCE SUIT

A sacramento daily paper published a story the other day relative to the divorce proceedings brought by Mrs. Agnes McKay against her husband, Charles McKay, who is well known in Washington.

Mrs. McKay was formerly a resident of Washington for several years, having been known as Mrs. Agnes Kinch.

Many residents of Washington will read with sorrow the reasons advanced for the divorce as recited in a daily paper of Sacramento.

Charles McKay, said by his wife to be a retired capitalist worth $60,000, today was made defendant in a suit for divorce filed in the Superior Court by Mrs. Agnes McKay on the ground of cruelty.

Mrs. McKay, who says the alleged acts of cruelty cited in her complaint occurred while they were living at 4300 H street, asks the court to award her $250 a month alimony. She avers his income is $600 monthly.

In her complaint, Mrs. McKay charges her spouse told her he had another woman to whom he could go any time he wanted and that she loved him and would keep care of him as long as he lived.

She also charges her spouse told her he did not know why he married her; that he wished he could get rid of her and that she either had to leave or take his abuse.

BEET HARVEST HAS STARTED IN HOLLAND DISTRICT

Beet harvesting commenced on several tracts in the Clarksburg district Monday, according to Farm Advisor Warren D. Norton. There is a large acreage of beets in this section, a good yield is reported and prices are good.

Among those who started harvesting Monday are Olson & Swartz, J. C. Marshall and Holmes Brothers.

JOSEPH AND SILVIERA BOYS WOULD SEE THE WORLD IN AUTO

Last Sunday afternoon Frank Joseph, son of E. M. Joseph, the dairyman, of Washington, and Joseph Silviera, a neighbor's boy, both about sixteen years of age, decided that it was time for them to see for themselves what was going on in the wide, wide world.

Appropriating the Joseph automobile, a valuable machine, too, by the way, they started out for the south and wound up in San Jose. A crafty officer noticing their actions and being suspicious that they had stolen the machine, placed them under arrest.

Word was immediately telegraphed to Mr. Joseph and to the Woodland authorities to hold the boys. Mr. Joseph started on the first train for San Jose and brought home the boys, who believe they can go along now without worrying about seeing the world.

Letters to the Editor

Deregulation failed

A recent letter in the opinion section to the effect that new regulations would not help in our current housing/financial recession seemed to leave out some critical issues and caused an urge to develop the following comments:

There are two aspects of our collective performance in the financial/housing arena which seem unduly slighted in the letter. One is that it can be persuasively argued that deregulation, first of the stock market and then of the financial aspects of the U.S. housing market, were major factors in the amazingly innovative and ambitious merchandising and financing of housing and the accompanying spectacular inflation in housing prices. The second aspect was that virtually all those involved from government, academia, and the financial and housing industries, as well as the media and other third parties, united to convince us that the world had changed and that we would from now on live in a perpetually improving economy.

Dr. Greenspan (then the head of the Fed and in charge of setting basic interest rates in the U.S.) at one point referred to the phenomenon (or at least the stock market aspect) as an example of irrational exuberance but was effectively chastised by Congress, President Clinton and those closely involved, which converted him to a fan. Others, seeing opportunity and essentially free loans from the Feb and unlimited leverage with minimal actual capital investment, became much less prudent and perhaps inappropriately aggressive.

One anecdote from a recent book on the housing situation: A man in Detroit had a 5 ½% loan on his house with about five years to go. When the push came to tap all those not already buying houses, he was told he could be paying only 1% in the new market. He checked with another broker who confirmed the statement. He ended up with a new loan and $20,000 in new debt because of the fees involved, and (eventually) a higher rate once the teaser rate expired.

Back in the 80's, Congress deregulated the savings and loan industry. For the next seven years a network of swindlers, mobsters, S&L executives and con men exploited the new regulatory weaknesses and thoroughly fleeced the industry – at taxpayer expense. Some major players were eventually tried and convicted, but it appears that little of the money was recovered and the sentences were (in comparison to the $200 billion extracted) minimal. On the flyleaf of the 1989 book about the entire affair, one reads "while the $200 billion repair bill remains unpaid, Congress marches blindly on toward radical bank deregulation."

'Private' property is just that

I was gently chided by my tablemate and fellow member of the "Bryte & Broderick Visioning Political Action Group" at the August 9th public meeting because (during the presentations of their visions from certain members of the community) I was rolling my eyes at a few of their "Green" and "PC" visions that, to me, were they to be implemented, would be non-voluntary.

Now, I don't have anything against trying to either save the planet or, at least, a few bucks, on their own. However, if a concept can't be sold in the marketplace of ideas on its merits, I strongly object to it being crammed down our collective throats, as if we were uninformed children, unable to come to the correct conclusion without a mandate from those who know better than we do, what is good for us, as it were. I am a firm believer in the Pacific Legal Foundation's definition of private property: Freedom equals "Mine and No! If you can say `Mine and No', it is private. If you cannot, it is not."

Notice of Availability of the Draft Environmental Impact Report for SacPort Regional Petroleum Terminal Project (SCH No. 2007032029)

The City of West Sacramento (City) has directed the preparation of a draft environmental impact report (EIR) to evaluate the potential environmental effects of constructing and operating the SacPort Regional Petroleum Terminal Project (Project) at the Port of Sacramento area of West Sacramento. The Draft EIR has been prepared in compliance with the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and the State CEQA Guidelines, with the City as the CEQA lead agency.

The Project requires the approval by the City of a Conditional Use Permit (CUP) and other entitlements to construct a new state-of the-art petroleum terminal and storage facility in the Port of Sacramento. The Project proposes to relocate the operations of up to four existing petroleum terminals from along both banks of the Sacramento River which are currently operated by Chevron, ConocoPhillips, Shell and BP/ Arco. The construction of the proposed Project would include the consolidation of 49 existing petroleum storage tanks to approximately 17 new tanks at the Port of Sacramento site. In addition, the Project proposes to construct a new 1.8 mile pipeline connection to an existing 8-inch Chevron pipeline that currently serves Chevron's Sacramento River terminal. Construction of the new pipeline connection would extend along the south side of the Barge Canal from the west side of the Palamidessi Bridge to just east of Jefferson Boulevard.

The 20-acre Project site is located along the south side of Industrial Boulevard, between Beacon Boulevard and Halyard Drive, to the west of Harbor Boulevard and south of the US 50 freeway.

The issues evaluated in detail in the Draft EIR include the following: aesthetics and visual resources; air quality/odors; biological resources; cultural, historic, and paleontological resources; geology and seismicity; hazards and hazardous materials; hydrology and water quality; noise; land-use compatibility and planning; public services and facilities; traffic and transportation; risk of upset; utility service and energy conservation; health risks; and climate change. All significant impacts of the proposed Project would be reduced to a less-than-significant level with mitigation except the following:

- Impact 4.8-4:

The Project would expose people or structures to a significant risk of loss, injury, or death involving flooding.

- Impact 4.8-7:T h e Project could have a cumulatively considerable effect on the long-term water quality of the Sacramento River and Delta.

- Impact 4.12-1:

The Harbor Boulevard intersection at Industrial Boulevard would need to be widened to provide additional capacity due to heavy traffic volumes during the AM peak hour 2025 Cumulative Plus Project Intersection Impact scenario.

- Impact 4.12-2:

The freeway mainline segment of US 50 between Jefferson Boulevard and Harbor Boulevard in the westbound direction would need to be widened to provide additional capacity during the 2025 Cumulative Plus Project Intersection Impact scenario.

The draft EIR is being made available for public review and comment for a period of 45 days beginning on August 22, 2008, and ending on October 6, 2008. Written comments must be submitted no later than 5:00 p.m. on Monday, October 6, 2008, to the following address:

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

"The Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor"

Running time: 113 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

An ancient Chinese emperor is resurrected along with his immortal terra-cotta army, and it's up to Rick and Evelyn O'Connell, their son and other forgettable supporting characters to stop the emperor from conquering the world.

That's the plot of "The Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor," a pretty-looking movie that doesn't really pack as big of a bang as you'd expect from a big-budget summertime popcorn flick.

One thing noticeably absent from "The Mummy: Hellboy 2 Did It Better," is Rachel Weisz as the hot, English wife of adventurer Rick O'Connell (Brendan Fraser). Apparently Weisz was the only member of the franchise to read the script and decided she'd rather spend her time buying pencils than be involved in this horrible production.

In her place is Maria Bello, an actress I have tons of respect for, but who is sorely miscast as an upper-class Englishwoman. Her accent is all over the place, and she simply doesn't have the bearing of someone born to privilege.

Another thing missing from the movie is entertainment. Which is odd, considering the film hits all the right beats, has all the right elements that should combine to make a fun flick. But the film never really comes together. It's like one of those paint-by-numbers pictures — all the colors are where they should be, but the painting looks like someone vomited Skittles all over the canvas.

I guess that's what I'm trying to say. "The Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor" is Skittle Vomit. See "Hellboy 2: The Golden Army" instead.

Bachelor Degree
By Judith Marks-White
(Ballantine Books, $14)
Reviewed by Katy Olson

A guilty literary pleasure arriving hot on the stiletto-clad heels of "Sex and the City's" big-screen foray, Judith Marks-White's steamy chick-lit novel, "Bachelor Degree," chronicles the fierce competition in life and in love between wealthy Manhattanite mother and daughter pair Madeleine and Samantha. For this well-heeled duo, no designer, no restaurant, and certainly no eligible bachelor, is off limits.

As an associate at the most prestigious art gallery in Manhattan, 30-something Samantha prides herself on her unflinching taste and critical eye. Though she is characteristically more successful at singling out quality art than acquiring a decent boyfriend, Samantha's business and romantic interests collide when she signs Blake, a top British artist who just so happens to resemble heartthrob Jude Law, to the gallery.

Just when things between Samantha and Blake begin to heat up, both professionally and personally, her mother Madeleine's meddling throws more bachelors into the mix in a ploy to marry her daughter off. Though each of the men in the novel's revolving cast has his own provocative story, the tumultuous relationship — and the barely veiled barbs and witty banter — between Madeleine and Samantha is the novel's true appeal.

Sprinkled like candy throughout the novel are salacious snippets of the Manhattan social scene — hot restaurants serving haute cuisine, mentions of the latest chichi fashion designers and slice-of-life portraits of the well-to-do — that are just as enticing as the novel's fluffy premise, and especially fun for those who can't make a trip to the Big Apple.

While some of the spicier love scenes are not for the faint of heart, those looking to extend this summer's scorching temperatures should look no further. "Bachelor Degree" is an absolutely indulgent, wildly amusing beach read.

Clean-up week

Get rid of that old furniture, those old mattresses and box springs, cars, and tires (up to nine) during Clean-Up Week September 3-6 at 540 Harbor Boulevard. Hours will be Wednesday-Friday 4-7 p.m. and Saturday 9-3. Bring proof of West Sacramento residency (city utility bill or driver's license). Scrap metal and appliances won't be accepted at that site, but can be taken to J&M Metal Recycling, 2205 Rice Blvd., from 8-5 Monday through Saturday. While the Clean-Up event no longer accepts wood and 'green' waste, your city utility bill includes a 'Clean Up Week' flyer with a voucher to take one residential load of wood or green waste to the landfill with no disposal charge. For information, call 617-4590 or visit www.westsacrecycles.org.
